INTRODUCTION

Northport was one of the first towns to be incorporated in Waldo County, only three others boasting a longer existence. It was the 106th town in the State of Maine; it was incorporated 13 February 1796 and was originally the northern part of the Plantation of Ducktrap. It is bounded on the north by Belfast and Belmont, the south and east by Penobscot Bay and on the west by Lincolnville. Its area is about twenty-five square miles and is noted more as a summer resort than as a farming town. It is hilly and over half of its surface is wooded, although there are some excellent farms back from the coast. The coast line is irregular and its only harbor is Saturday Cove.

The early records of Northport were destroyed by fire, so that the records now extant date from 1837. The earliest authentic records of early settlers, however, places the first settlement sometime about 1780. In 1789, when the first census was taken, the settlement had a population of 278.

One of the earliest white men to land on the shores of Northport was James Miller, an early settler of Belfast, who, on his way from New Hampshire to take up land in Belfast, touched at Northport on Saturday in 1769, thinking he had reached his destination. He later, when he found his mistake, called the place Saturday Cove, a name which it has always retained.

At one time in the early days of the first settlement in Belfast, Robert Miller was returning in a boat from Camden with a bag of meal when he went ashore at Northport to get a dinner prepared at a cabin there, which was probably the only one in the place at that time. He found the family ill and destitute, and shared with the family his bag of meal.

Among the earliest permanent settlers in Northport was David Miller, who took up land on the shore about 1786. John and Catherine Wadlin came soon after. They had a family of twelve children. Captain Thomas Burkmar, a soldier of the Revolution, came before 1795 and took up a tract of land of two or three hundred acres. He became a leading man in the community. John Thomas Jr., and Joseph, were among the early comers and probably all belonged to the same family. Other settlers in Northport before 1800 were Nathaniel Sylvester, Micajah Drinkwater and sons, Zenas and Josiah, who settled on the shore road not far from Ducktrap. Gershom and Abigail Collier, with their two sons and a daughter, settled near the Knight's Pond about 1797. They came from Islesboro where they had previously settled. The Colliers were leading men of their day.

Lewis Pitcher and his wife, Sarah settled near Pitcher's Pond before 1795 and one of their descendants lives there today. They had a family of eleven children.

George Pitcher was another of the early comers and settled near the shore. James and Thomas Rhodes took up one hundred acres each and settled near Duck Trap. John Gilkey, Rena Knight, David Gay and Will Bradford also settled in that vicinity.

Outlines of what is thought by some people to have been a prehistoric road exist in Northport near the Bluff and indicate the possible presence there of the Norsemen or other early voyagers centuries ago.

During those early days the question of food was often the paramount problem and those living along the shores were sometimes obliged to make clams their chief food. This caused some wag to compose the following rhyme which was a standing joke seventy-five years ago.

"Camden for beauty, Northport for pride,
If it hadn't been for clams, Belfast would have died."

What distinguished Northport in days gone by was its campmeetings. The first Methodist campmeeting was held in September 1849 and annually for many years it was a gathering place for people for miles around. The meetings were held once a week but the great day when everybody was there was Thursday. They drove in for twenty miles or more, took their dinners and made a day of it. Out from the grounds was a lane known as "Horse Jocky-Lane." Here could be found all the old scrub horses in the country and trading was brisk. But as time passed the attendance at camp meeting grew less, so that today little or no attention is paid to it only by those who attend for religious purposes.

Later another campmeeting was started at Temple Heights by the Spiritualist Society and many pretty cottages have been built there. The Northport Campground is now called Bayside and is a summer resort.

In 1790 the population of Northport was 278 and in 1920 it had 466.

Probably the first clergyman to visit Northport was Rev. Paul Coffin, D.D., who visited there in 1796, and preached the first sermon there. The first Methodist church at Saturday Cove was built about 100 years ago, but was burned about twenty years after its erection. Elders Benjamin Jones of Lincolnville, M. E. Brackett and E. M. Fowler of Searsmont were among the early preachers.

The Methodist church of East Northport was built and dedicated in 1903. Mr. C. H. Bryant of Bristol was instrumental in having it built. H. L. Kochersperger of Chicago contributed the lot and the Ladies' Aid Society of East Northport contributed the funds. Mr. Bryant was the first preacher. The church is now supplied from Belfast.

The church at the Cove was erected through the work of the Ladies' Aid Society. It was dedicated as a Baptist church and has always been supplied.

Several of the early settlers were veterans of the Revolution and earlier wars and in the war of 1812 sixty men were enrolled under the command of Capt. Jonathan Frye.

One of Northport's most widely known and public spirited citizens was Daniel A. Wadlin, who was born in 1830. He was a member of the House of Representatives in 1858 and in 1890 was elected as Senator from Waldo County. He was an oldtime school teacher and made farming and dairying his life work. He was a member of the Board of Agriculture for three years and connected with both the Waldo County and Maine state fairs for many years. He was also prominent in Grange work.

The present volume in front of you contains a transcript of all of the Vital Records of the town of Northport prior to 1892. These were transcribed by Elizabeth Mosher from the original records, which were broken up into 5 sections: Family Records - Book 1, Intentions & Marriages - Book 1, Intentions & Marriages - Book 2, Births - Book 2, Deaths - Book 2. Any page numbers missing here were blank pages in the original. Priscilla A. Jones also worked on these Vital Records for years and there are typed copies with additions in several places. There were some omissions and corrections to be made on these. Also included in this volume are transcriptions of census records and census mortality schedules. Elizabeth Mosher transcribed the census records from the film at Maine State Archives for the years 1800, 1830 and 1840. The years 1810 and 1820 of the census records were transcribed by Priscilla A. Jones.

The copy following of the Indenture is taken from Priscilla Jones' records.

PETITION FOR INCORPORATION

(Petition accompanying Chap. 40, Acts of 1795).

mmonw'th (To the Hon^ble the Senate the hon^ble the House of Representatives of (of said Commonwealth in General Court Assembled at Boston sachusetts (Jan^y 1796.

The petition of the subscribers inhabitants of the Northerly part of a plantation called Duck Trap in the County of Hancock humbly, shew - that the said Inhabitants have for a long time struggled with the Difficulties arising from their unincorporated State and are now become convinced that in order to insure to themselves the advantage of the laws, of Society, and of due regulations - it will be necessary for them to vested with the powers, priviledges and immunities of incorporated towns.

The plantation now called Duck Trap is of too considerable an extent to form one town, and the inhabitants have agreed upon such a Division as will be a mutual accomadation to both parts.

The lines comprehending the part now the subject of your petitioners application are as follows - viz. beginning at a place called Little River, on the line dividing the plantation of Duck Trap from the Town of Belfast - thence running a course SouthWest by West three miles, thence north West by North One mile, thence South east by South to the bay on Sea shore Six miles thence by the sea shore a northerly Course to the first mentioned bounds—

Your petioners pray that the Land above described, with the inhabitants living within the same tract may be incorporated with all the priviledges, powers & immunities of towns in this Commonwealth, into a town by the name of Knoxton——And as in Duty bound shall ever pray—

The following Every Name Index compiled by Picton Press contains a total of 5,153 entries. Women are indexed whenever possible under both their maiden and married name(s). Maiden names are given in parentheses, thus Mary (Smith) Jones. When the maiden name is unknown, it is given thus: Mary (--) Jones. As always, readers are cautioned to check under all conceivable spellings. We have grouped some similar spellings together.
